The magic of home
From genetic forecasting to winning the Lottery – can science show us how to beat the odds?

Chances are, science can tell us a lot about the perfect bet, sexual attraction, freak accidents and even the random events that led to your own conception. We all know daily life is like a roll of the dice. But just how random is it really? And what are the chances of something extraordinary happening? If the odds against winning the Lottery jackpot are a mindboggling 14 million to one, why do we persist in thinking we’re in with a chance? You and your sibling may have the same parents, but who’s to say if you’ll be like chalk and cheese, or two peas in a pod?

Like the bestselling Nothing before it, Chance again brings together some of New Scientist’s sharpest minds, this time to provide fascinating insights into luck, randomness, risk and probability. From the secrets of coincidence to the science of random number generation and the haphazard decisions of criminal juries, they explore the weird and wonderful world of what we call chance – and help explain what chance really means.
EVERYTHING YOU NEED. YOU HAVE. HOW TO BE AT HOME IN YOUR SELF.

Brought to you by YouTube Vlogger Alfie Deyes, The Pointless Book is the ultimate addition to his YouTube channel – a weird and funny video-diary of fun, challenges and nothingness: bake a cake in a mug; take part in a people-watching challenge; create a time capsule; diarise a week of your life, and learn to make origami. Fully illustrated and packed with a host of games, activities and pranks, Alfie invites you to join his online following as he challenges you to complete your journal of pointlessness and do virtually nothing with pride.

Change.
You can fear it.
Or you can let it happen.
Either way the world is turning.
History is made every day.
Bravery is choosing to move with it.
Using where you’re from as a reason to keep going.
To break new ground.

So take courage.
Hold integrity.
Burn with the spirit of youth and light the way forward.

These are times of change.
And we say move.
Lived among us.
What are the challenges we face when seeking to make deeper disciples?
